Put Reminder signs that prompt people for occasional chores, that are only "as needed."

Post clear to-do lists for every chore, so that you have a "valid 3rd party source" to determine whether or not the chore is all the way done. This cuts out people having different opinions on whether the chore is finished or not. This eliminates the Mom saying "I don't feel like it's good enough." Much less emotional to simply say, "It looks like you have forgotten some things on the list; please make sure you do everything on the list."

Sample of these lists are in a separate document for you.

Post your weekly Rainbow Chore assignments on your fridge or another central location. A sample is provided for you in an excel document.
